3000 words (the third level of this test) accounts for about 2% of English. In comparison, the 4001-5000 most frequent words represent less than 1% of English language. Taken together, this means that knowing the most frequent 1000 words will have greater value than knowing the 1001-2000 words, which have greater value than the most frequent 2001-3000 words, and so on.

You took 1784 seconds to complete this test.

Your scores on each of the five levels were:

The 1000 word level: 97%
The 2000 word level: 100%
The 3000 word level: 90%
The 4000 word level: 100%
The 5000 word level: 90%

A score of 86% or higher on one level of the test indicates that you know enough of those words to move on to learning the next level. If your scores is below 86% on a level that means that you still need to study words at that level. You can find a 1000 word list for this level (and all of the other levels from the test) at the bottom of the following link:
